Washington, D. C. 20505

Dear General Walters:

Our mutual friend, Ed Austin, sent me a copy of the letter he has written you, and I sincerely concur in his request, an invitation that you come to our Symposium this coming May.

The name of the organization may sound a bit goofy to you but I can assure you it is a very serious group and I know we would benefit greatly by having you with us. The date is May the 19th and we sure hope you can be there.

With best wishes,

Barry Goldwater

Dear Dick:

Enclosed is a roster of an organization of which I am a member. You will note that the major occupations of many of the members are captains of airlines.

It seems that one of them flew you back from London. He was very impressed. Dr. Crane has asked me to use my "influence" in prevailing upon you to accept an invitation to speak at our Aerospace Symposium in Stamford next May.

Although the year book indicates that it usually takes place in the second week, I was told that it will take place on Friday of the third week.

Of course there is a paucity of detail or background herein, but Barry Goldwater would be a handy (?) interlocutor. He is aware of this invitation.

Frank is still hanging on with courage as is Mrs. Wheaton. Ned is doing a super job with IBM in Burlington. Bobbie (Conzelman) is happy in Arlington - her husband in DESLOG.

I know that Ruth would join me in affectionate best wishes for the season.

Sincerely,

Colonel Edward L. Austin

The history of the International Order of Characters begins in the South Pacific during World War II. It was founded in Auckland, New Zealand by the then Major James E. Crane, M.D., USAF (Res.). Dr. Crane was then in charge of the 13th Air Force Rest and Rehabilitation Center. The order was organized to establish rapport between flyer and physician. At war's end the order was deactivated. In 1954 it was reactivated by Dr. Crane and a board of four pilots. This board consisted of Colonel Leon W. Gray, USAF; Captain Samuel Miller, V.P. of Operations (PAA); and airline Captains Samuel G. Wood (PAA) and Guy F. McCafferty (PAA). The board then elected Dr. Crane as permanent President of the organization.

There are two meetings held each year. The business meeting, held in October, determines the course the organization will take during the coming year and is usually held outside the United States. Sites of past meetings include London, Munich, Tokyo, Monaco, Lisbon, Hawaii, Naples, Salzburg and Bermuda. However, three meetings have been held in the United States: Las Vegas, Williamsburg and Phoenix. At these meetings the business of the organization is conducted and the Admissions Committee convenes to vote on new members.

The second meeting is on I.O.C. Day which is the second weekend in May. This meeting, held in Stamford, Connecticut, has two parts. The first consists of the Aerospace Symposium and includes national and international speakers. The second portion, held in the evening, is the formal Honors Night Banquet. The evening program is entirely social and is used to present the following coveted awards and trophies; Character of the Year, Pilot of the Year, Aerospace Trophy and the Tiger Award of the Year. Also at the dinner meeting new members are presented and given their I.O.C. credentials.

Though its name is no indication of its purpose, this organization is an international group of dedicated aerospace enthusiasts who perform their art in all stratae of aeronautics and research. The I.O.C. has set up the I.O.C. Educational Fund to help finance the education of sons and daughters of deceased or infirm pilots. There are five Memorial Scholarships: Colonel Roscoe Turner Memorial Scholarship; John Stack Memorial Scholarship; Colonel N. Jay Boots Memorial Scholarship; Major Cecil Montgomery-Moore Scholarship and the Gladstone Memorial Scholarship given by Mrs. Adrienne Gladstone in memory of her family. These are four $1000 annual scholarships and one $1500 annual scholarship. All of this has gone a long way towards helping the families educate the children. This is a very worthwhile endeavor and one of which we are most proud, made possible because of the donations of our members.

This organization has no dues, however to remain "active" it is required that a member must attend one meeting in four or contribute to the Educational Foundation.

10 April 73

General Walters Called Dr. Crane to tell him he would be travelling on 18 May and would therefore not be able to make the speech. Dr. Crane asked if he had any suggestions for a replacement and the General offered to do what he could to find someone. General Walters later contacted General George Keegan, ACSI, Dept of the Air Force who agreed to do it. General Walters then called ~~me~~ Dr. Crane to tell him.

11 Apr 73

I talked to Col Ventres, Exec to Gen Keegan who wanted to know more about IOC. I sent him what background we had, copies of letters General Walters received from Col Austin, Barry Goldwater, and Dr. Crane as well as the booklet on the IOC.

1. Colonel Carl F. Bernard, Professor of Military Science has stated that you possess eminent expertise in areas of a political-military nature that may be of interest to our cadets.
2. He wishes to place your name in nomination as a permanent panel/lecturer member for the Army ROTC sponsored Academic Enrichment Program (See enclosed letter).
3. The Academic Enrichment Program is established by the National Strategy Information Center, Inc (NSIC) and is designed to provide campus ROTC programs with eminently qualified speakers as guest lecturers to give added depth and perspective to the instruction of politico-military subjects in the ROTC curriculum. An additional objective is to assist ROTC in maintaining standards of study that merit academic accreditation and improve the academic appeal of the ROTC course of instruction. The NSIC was organized in 1962 as a tax-exempt institution to conduct educational programs on national defense. An advisory council exercises administrative control of the program and monitors the Carthage Foundation, which constitutes the financial support for the program. Dr. Wark E. Elliott, Assistant Professor of Political Science at Claremont Men's College, chairs the council.
